Extinction rebellion london 2019

The extinction uprising has taken various actions in the UK, THE US, Australia and elsewhere since 2018. The UK's action on 17 October 2018, activists from the extinction riots, sat at the UK headquarters in Greenpeace to encourage its members to take part in mass civil disobedience as the only remaining alternative to averting the worst disaster and joining further extinction. [1] Declaration of rebellion In Parliament Square, 2018 On 31 October 2018, an assembly was held in Parliament Square, London, on 31 October 2018, and drew more than a thousand people to hear the Declaration of Rebellion[3] against the UK Government and Donnachadh McCarthy, 15-year-old Greta Thunberg, a Swedish schoolgirl, on the strike speech of her government's climate inaction.[4] Julia Bradbury and Green EPdebury Scott Scott [3] Following a proposal proposed and agreed, the Assembly moved on the road to take the road where Green MEP Caroline Lucas, environmentalist George Monbiot, and other speakers and singers, including Exercise Day, continued from a reclaimed street just in front of parliament's house. [3] Subsequently, 15 campaigners were arrested for deliberately continuing to sit on the road. [3] In the first two weeks of the movement, in November 2018, more than 60 people were arrested for participating in acts of civil disobedience organised by the extinction uprising. [5] On 12 November 2018, activists blocked the UK Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy, and some glued their hands to the department's door. [6] Activists came up with Climate Change... We've a banner over Westminster Bridge [7] and glued ourselves to the gates of Downing Street, near the Prime Minister's official residence, on 14 November. [8] [9] On the evening of 15 November, a large group closed the tráfalgar square access road outside the Brazilian Embassy in a joint action with Brazilian women against fascism in Britain. [10] The Day of The Uprising on Blackfriars Bridge, 17 November 2018, on the so-called Uprising Day, about 6,000 people took part in a coordinated action for several hours to block five major bridges over the River Thames in London (Southwark, Blackfriars, Waterloo, Westminster and Lambeth) for several hours, causing major disruptions, 70 arrests were made. [5] [11] [12] [13] [14] The Guardian described it as one of the greatest acts of peaceful civil disobedience in the UNITED KINGDOM in decades. [5] [15] YBA artist Gavin Turk was one of the activists arrested for obstructing a public highway. [16] There was a rally elsewhere in the United Kingdom in Belfast[16] but there were more events on the international stage. Extinct Riot Protesters in Tower Hill, November 23, 2018 From November 21, 2018, launching a campaign known as spies road blocks (reusable blocks 7 minutes each), the small groups of the extinction riot group protested by invading the road junctions of Lambeth and Vauxhall Bridges, Elephant and Castle, Tower Bridge and Earl's Court, causing serious disruption to rush hour traffic and continuing throughout the day. [15] [19] [20] [21] [22] [23] Similar activities continued over the next two days in London.[24] with one group moving to Oxford Street on the afternoon's shopping day on Black Friday. [25] On 23 November, in its first action outside London, the extremist riot group in York stopped traffic on Coppergate, Clifford Street, Pavement and Ouse Bridge and held a demonstration outside the Western offices of York City Council. [26] [27] The Oxford XR group blocked traffic on Botley Road on the same day. [28] The uprising day 2 on Rebellion Day 2, a week after the first, extinction riot blocked roads around Parliament Square, before a mock funeral march to Downing Street and then to Buckingham Palace. [29] XR co-founder Gail Bradbrook read a letter to the Queen and one activist glued to the gates of the castle before the march returned to Parliament Square. [30] On 24 November, measures were taken outside London by XR groups in Manchester[31] in Sheffield[32] McHynleth[33] and Edinburgh. [34] On 15 December 2018, a psychology professor was arrested for assaulting climate change graffiti in a building in bristol's Department of environment, food and rural affairs (DEFRA).[35][36][37] and a die-in took place at a local shopping centre. [38] On 21 December 2018, activities were staged at BBC locations across the UK, a mocking revolt calling for a change in editorial policy, with the failure to report a climate emergency. BBC headquarters in London were put on lockdown. [39] [40] [41] January 2019 - Council action on 25 January 2019 staged a peaceful one-hour occupation in the Scottish Parliament debate chamber in Holyrood, Edinburgh. [42] On 11 February in Norwich[43] and Gloucestershire, which included mock trials for criminal negligence on the part of the council, council chambers. [44] February - London Fashion Week The Extinction Riot March during London Fashion Week, London, February 22, 2019, during London Fashion Week in February, the extinct uprising organised events to stop events calling on british fashion council organisers to declare a climate emergency and that the industry should play a leading role in combating climate change. [45] Swarming road blocks took place outside several places; a couple of rebels wore living hall coats. [46] Later in the week, designer and XR co-founder Clare Farrell, was barred from a fashion show by a label in which she was involved in the production. [47] March Gerald Vernon-Jackson, Mayor of Portsmouth City Council, joined the protest of the extinction riot in Portsmouth, on 9 March 2019, about 400 protesters staged the blood of our children outside Downing Street, where they poured buckets of fake blood on the road to represent the endangered lives of children. [48] As Portsmouth City Council adopted the climate emergency movement, 49. In the UK, protesters confront leader Gerald Vernon-Jackson outside portsmouth guildhall. [49] April - At a House of Commons naked demonstration on April 1, 2019, around 12 protesters were arrested after stripping and pasting at a glass House of Commons viewing gallery in a debate over Britain's planned departure from the European Union, and two protesters wore grey body paint and elephant masks to draw attention to the elephant in the room. [50] XR activists were inspired to take direct action with the suffragette protest in Parliament in 1909 when (without naked) protesters clipped a statue. [51] April – In London, a pink boat with the slogan to tell the truth, named after Berta Cáceres, was located in Oxford Circus on April 18, 2019, the extinction riot organized demonstrations in London focusing its attention on the Oxford Circus, Marble Arch, The Bridge of Votoerulo and the area around Parliament Square. [52] Activists murdered Honduran environmental activist Berta Cáceres in the middle of the busy intersection of Oxford Street and Regent's Street (Oxeta Circus) and glued himself to it.[53][54] and also created several gazebos, potted plants and trees, a mobile link and a skate ramp, while occupying Waterloo Bridge. [55] [56] Five activists, including XR co-founder Simon Bramwell, were arrested for criminal damage when they were targeted at Shell headquarters, near Waterloo. [57] [55] After the police imposed a 24-hour section 14 condition at 18:55, which required activists to move to Marble Arch[58], the police tried to find out that Waterloo Bridge had arrested 113 people without losing control of the bridge. [59] [60] On the second day of action against Waterloo Bridge, the police began arresting the activists at 12.00. By the end of 16 April, around 500 000 people had been injured during the breaks and 290 activists were arrested in London. [64] In Scotland, more than 1,000 protesters occupied the North Bridge for seven hours in Edinburgh, stopping on one of the main routes in the city centre. The police said they made 29 arrests. [65] On Wednesday, 17 April, two activists climbed onto the roof of the Docklands light rail railway at Canary Wharf station, while the other was glued sideways, spreading the railway disruption. [67] The next day three activists were accused of obstructing the train and after pleading not guilty sent to jail for four weeks without bail pending their next hearing. [68] In response to the protests, the British Transport Police stopped access to public Wi-Fi on the London Underground on the same day. [69] [70] [71] At the end of Wednesday, a large police force went to the camp in Parliament Square, arresting people and partially removing obstacles[72], before being recovered later that night by protesters arriving with a samba lane and re-creating roadblocks. [73] On 18 April, the fourth day of continuous occupation in four places, the rate of arrest had risen to 428, the majority violated public order laws and obstruction. [53] [74] On the morning of April 18, about 20 XR activists spread the traffic disruption more widely through a series of swarming (short) roadblocks on Vauxhall Bridge. After the closing ceremony of April 25, a wall painting appeared in the Marble Arch and was attributed to the artist Banksy. [76] [77] The slogan from now on despair ends and tactics begin to be a quote from the revolution in everyday life. [78] On the morning of 19 April, after considerable media speculation about the threat to Heathrow Airport,[79][80][81] about a dozen teenagers, some aged 13 and 14, approached the access road with a banner with such an article Arey we the last generation? Some teenagers wept and embraced each other as they were surrounded by a much larger squad of police. [54] [82] [83] In the middle of the day, the police moved in force to surround the pink boat when Emma Thompson read poetry from the deck, eventually removing people who were either locked or glued to it. After seven hours the police had moved the boat without clearing Oxford Circus. [53] [84] By late night, police said that 682 people had been arrested so far in London. [54] On 25 April, thirteen protesters on the London Stock Exchange blocked themselves by pasting themselves across the entrances wearing LED signs. Nevertheless, the functioning of the market was not affected. [85] Another 4 protesters climbed onto the Docklands Light rail train at Canary Wharf, and held banners that caused short delays between Bank and Monuments Station and Stratford/Lewisham station. 26 people were arrested. [85] In the afternoon, activists gathered in Hyde Park as a closing ceremony for the movement, which culminated in 11 days of demonstrations in London. A total of 1,130 people were arrested during the demonstrations. [86] As of June 2019, one protester, Angie Zelter, has been convicted of public order offences for taking part in professions. [87] July – Summer Uprising, on 13 and 14 July 2019, a weekend of protest in East London took place on 13 and 14 July 2019, with a series of seven-minute Dalston traffic blockades, mass cycling through the A10, olympic park traffic blocks, a people's assembly outside Hainny Town Hall and all-day negotiations and conversations in the London countryside. [88] It was the predecessor of the Summer Uprising from 08:00 on July 15 to 11:00 on July 20, Bristol, Leeds, Cardiff, Glasgow and London. Protests in different cities focused on various threats: sea floods, forest fires, harvest disturbances and extreme weather conditions with different colours of boats marked Act Now and other reports at each site. [89] The protest sites had significant disruption to traffic. [90] September - The London Fashion Week's extinction riot targeted London Fashion Week (LFW) in September 2019 with a series of measures to raise awareness of the environmental damage caused by the fashion industry, the UN has said it uses more energy than the aviation and shipping industry combined. [91] On 13 September, XR occupied the official venue of f/w. [92] [93] On 15 September, it was directed against the Victoria Beckham show with a herd of protesters holding posters. [94] On 17 September, around 200 people organised a funeral procession from Trafalgar Square to H&amp;M store and LFW venue in Strand; [91] [95] [96] and people talked about the failure of the fashion industry and fast fashion. [97] September - The blockade of the Port of Dover Protesters blocked Bristol Bridge on 21 September 2019, when the dover of an excrement riot attempted to block the port of Dover by holding a legal protest on the A20's western carriageway, which the police had temporarily designated for this purpose. [98] Vehicles were diverted to the A2, but activists also carried themselves to the road, blocking traffic in one direction. Giant banners hung from Dover Castle and the White Cliffs of Dover. [100] The Activity No Food on a Dying Planet, which was linked to the potential for food shortages due to climate change, was particularly held in Britain's busiest port due to the UK's dependence on food imports. [99] Ten, mostly elderly people, were arrested. [100] [101] On 3 October 2019, XR protesters used a fire engine to spray fake blood on and around HM Cash in central London. [102] [103] [104] On 6 October, XR held the opening ceremony of Marble Arch, attended by more than a thousand demonstrators. [105] On 7 October, several thousand people had blocked seats in the Westminster district, with 135 demonstrators. [106] Two days before the plan to close parts of central London for at least two weeks, police raided the former courthouse in Lambeth in part, using it as a preparatory area, arresting ten people and removing solar panels, toilets and other equipment. [107] [108] The police were criticised for using pre-empt arrests, which argued that the extinction riot was irresponsible in trying to reassess police resources and that officers were taken away from their main duties. [109] [110] International Uprising As part of a series of two-week XR operations, which they called an international uprising,[111] takes place in more than 60 cities around the world.[112] events were planned around London from 7 to 19 October to require the UK Government to take urgent action to address the climate crisis. [112] [113] Despite a lot of and, heavy rain throughout this period, protests went ahead. [114] [115] More than a thousand people attended the opening ceremony of Marble Arch on 6 October. [116] [105] On 7 October, several thousand people closed parts of Westminster in central London, blocking Whitehall, Mall, Westminster Bridge, Lambeth Bridge, Trafalgar Square, Detonh Street and Victoria Waterfront. [117] On 10 October, a sit-in took place at london city airport at the exit of the DLR railway station, and activists were covering themselves on the floor. Two flights were delayed by activists who had bought tickets. Other activists climbed onto the terminal roof[118][119], while former paralympic cyclist James Brown boarded a British Airways plane, performing a live event online. [120] [121] On 11 October, XR activists obstructed access to the front door of the BBC Broadcasting House. [122] Princess Marie-Esméralda from Belgium demonstrated XR in London in April 2019 and was arrested on 10 October and later released after joining a sit-in protest in Trafalgar Square. She said: The more people from all parts of society protest, the greater the impact there will be, and that by taking the ear of high-ranking people, she raised climate issues whenever possible. [124] [125] More than 1000 arrests were made by 11 October. [126] On 12 October, a funeral march was held in the middle of XR on Oxford Street, with 20,000 participants. [127] The same day, animal rights activists group Animal Riot (linked to XR) said 28 of their supporters were arrested in an attempt to block access to the Billingsgate Fish Market. [128] As of Monday, 14 October, hundreds of XR activists occupied the Bank's crossroads, outside the Bank of England's London city financial district, focusing on financial institutions, financing environmental destruction. [129] [130] That night police, controversially, banned all extinction riot protests from all over London starting at 19:13[132] Around the same time, the police began clearing people and tents that remained in the camp in Trafalgar Square, cutting free and arresting people who had locked themselves in place; The police had until then allowed the area to be occupied. [132] XR continued to protest at the Department of Transport on 15 October at 12.00. [133] Bradbrook invited ministers to explain how their continued expansion of roads and airports equipped with a net zero emissions target. [133] There was strong criticism of the police ban, which individuals and organisations call cooling and illegal. [134] London Mayor Sadig Khan, who usually hopes to work with the police, appeared to distance himself from the ban. Green Party MP Caroline Lucas said the ban was a huge over-reach of police power; Freedom said it was a grossly disproportionate movement by the Met and on the right to protest. [135] XR applied for a judicial review of the urgency of the prohibition. [136] On October 16, infant mothers took a sit-down outside Google's London headquarters in King's Cross in protest at the company's funding of climate deniers. [137] In the same building XR Youth climbed onto the entrance to YouTube, with a banner on YouTube, to stop climate denial.[137] in connection with its handling of climate change denial videos. [137] George Monbiot and Jonathan Bartley were arrested in Whitehall. [138] On 17 October, XR activists targeted rail and metro traffic near the financial district of Canary Wharf by climbing on or sticking themselves to trains at Shadwell, Stratford and Canning Town stations. [139] At Canning Town, a largely working-class neighborhood, an activist was pulled from the top of a tube train and beaten by angry commuters. [139] [140] XR's lack of class and racial awareness, and confused news blocking public transport, were highlighted by many in the media. [141] [142] [143] [144] [145] XR apologised in the notification: [146] Elsewhere, one XR spokesman said that the protest was a huge own goal[147], while other XR appreciated the significant media attention that it generated. [148] More than 3,700 people participated in an online survey before running with 72% against it no matter how it is done. [148] [149] [150] In response, some groups of kinship planning activities will pull out while others continue. [148] [149] The decentralised structure of the group allows individual groups to act separately. [147] [149] On the morning of 18 October, the last day of Oxford Circus was blocked using a pyramid structure made of wooden poles on which some people locked up. [151] [152] Later, a protester's free solo climbed halfway up Big Ben, using scaffolding currently around it, and unfurled by two large banners, reading: No pride on the dead planet and the Citizens Assembly. [153] [154] On 20 October, a protest action document was carried out at the National Portrait Gallery against bp sponsorship.[155] which XR claims to be the disappearance of funding. [156] Three protesters lay on the gallery floor wearing only underwear, while others poured fake oil over them; a monologue and information was provided. [156] The protest was on the last day of the BP Portrait Awards exhibition and in the room where BP sponsored the pieces were exhibited. Hunger Strike Some XR activists took part in a global hunger strike that began on 18 November involving 526 people in 28 countries, 263 of whom were in the UK. The hunger strike was intended to show how the climate crisis is already urgently affecting people in many parts of the world. [157] Although most ended the strike around 23/24 in November, until November 27, a slight out of extinction rebellion continued, staged outside Labour, Conservative and Liberal Democrat Party headquarters in London. Their request was for all party leaders agree to meet with them and pledge support for the XR Climate and Ecological Emergency Bill. [158] Election Uprising: Twelve Days of Crisis on December 4, about half a dozen activist outfits took action during the Liberal Democrat campaign for the 2019 UK general election in Streatham, south London. One such activist glued himself to the windshield of the Liberal Democrat battle bus. [159] On 9 December, activists blocked a central London road to demand that the next government tackle air pollution in London. [161] They wore gas masks and glued their hands to breeze blocks in the middle of Cranbourn Street, outside Leicester Square Tube station. [162] Activists also blocked the Great Ancoats Street in Manchester, which is the main road for workers, during rush hour with wooden structures and banners. [162] [163] On 17 February 2020, members of the Cambridge University Extinction Riot gathered for a joint excavation outside Trinity College in protest at the college, which continues to invest its allocations in oil and gas companies. The mud dug up was later taken to a local branch of Barclays Bank. [164] [165] On November 11, a member of the extinction riot laid down a poppy wreath at the Cenotaph in London, reading Act Now, referring to climate change and displaying a banner with the word Honor of their sacrifice/climate change meaning war. The wreath was removed from the Cenotaph by the police. [166] New York's action on November 17, 2018, on the so-called Uprising Day, in New York, hardened the rally. [18] On January 26, 2019, the newly created extinction riot in NYC conducted its first operation with activists to form a symbol of extinction, with its bodies on ice at rockefeller center skater. An activist climbed and hung a banner on a large gold Prometheus statue reading Climate Change = Mass Murder, Rebel Life. Intl Uprising Week April 15, 2019. Nine people were arrested. [167] Die-in protest at New York City Hall, 17 April 2019 On April 17, 2019, more than 60 activists were arrested in die-in streets around New York City. Two activists climbed into light posts and hung a banner reading Recognize the Climate Emergency along with the Extinction Symbol. In addition to the extinction riots general requirement, a special requirement for action was that New York City officially declares a climate emergency and calls for emergency mobilization to ensure a safe climate. [168] In this respect, the action was successful as on 26 June 2019, the New York City Council unanimously adopted Resolution 0864-2019, announcing a climate emergency and calling for emergency mobilisation, becoming the first major US city to do so. [169] On June 22, 2019, 70 activists with an extinction riot in NYC were arrested for blocking traffic outside New York City's The New York Times headquarters in Manhattan's middle town. Protesters form extinction symbol with their bodies on Eighth Avenue, rappelled the roof of the Port Authority Bus Terminal with a banner that read Climate Emergency and climbed over a large glass shed in the New York Times Building with sound equipment and signs. [170] The protest called for more urgent climate coverage in the New York Times and other media outlets, including respecting the group's publicly available media standards. [171] The Extinction Riot NYC continued to protest the quality of New York Times climate coverage with smaller activities outside the newspaper headquarters, paying particular attention to the Times's proposed sponsorship of the oil industry conference, Oil and Money 2019, scheduled for fall in London 2019. In response, on September 3, 2019, the New York Times abandoned sponsorship at this conference on the grounds that the subject gives us cause for concern. [172] Protesters on Wall Street, October 7, 2019, members of the Extinction Rebellion NYC, launched a campaign to raise awareness of the climate crisis by making speeches and disseminating information in subway cars. [173] On August 10, 2019, more than 100 people were arrested in protest, demanding that RXR Realy evict the U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement Agency (ICE) from the Starr-Lehigh building due to human rights violations taking place at the U.S.-Mexico border, and ICE's role in mass deportations. This operation, which included protesters shutting down the West Side Highway, was co-sponsored by the Extinction Riot NYC, Movimiento Cosescha, the NYC DSA Immigration Justice Task Force, and the Metropolitan Anarchist Coordination Council. [174] On September 5, 2019, members of the extinction riots blocked traffic at several midpoints in Manhattan and performed a dance routine to draw attention to the ongoing fires in Amazonia. [175] On September 6, 2019, an activist with an extinction revolt became the first person in more than 40 years to climb to the Unisphere, a 140-foot-high (43m) stainless steel globe in Queens, New York. He hung a banner saying ZERO CO2 in 2025. CLIMATE JUSTICE NOW, along with the Extinction Symbol, more than South America to draw attention to the fires ravaging Amazonia. [176] On October 7, 2019, activists of the extinction riot threw fake blood over a Wall Street torching bull. [177] [178] Australian Act Declaration Day in the Victorian State Government, March 22, 2019, Extinction Rebellion Australia held Declaration Day on 22 March 2019 in Melbourne, Adelaide, Sydney and Brisbane. Demonstrators assembled and protested to demand that governments and the media declare a climate emergency. On the eve of International Uprising Day, 15 April, the XR group occupied the Australian House of Commons. [179] On 19 April, XR activists thubbed a railway line in Brisbane. [180] On 17 November 2018, activities elsewhere in Stockholm went down on the day of the XR Group Uprising, as well as rallies in Dublin, Galway, Copenhagen, Berlin and Madrid. [18] On 15 April 2019, XR activists occupied part of the International Criminal Court in The Hague, creating chains of people before being arrested. [182] Similar activities were organised by XR groups in Berlin, Heidelberg, Brussels, Lausanne, Madrid[183] and Denver. [184] On September 11, 2019, the wing of the Zurich extinction uprising painted the Limmat River, the main river flowing through the center of The Swiss city, glowing green. [185] XR activists floated up and stationary in the river[186] and floated downstream during the imitation of dead bodies. [187] Action was taken to highlight the different ways in which global warming threatens water. [188] On September 23, 2019, at least 8 people were arrested at the Denver XR and Broadway intersection during the Denver XR and Broadway intersections in order to disrupt traffic to raise the group's awareness. [189] The same day the XR protest in Los Angeles concluded sunset boulevard evening rush hour, no arrests reported. [190] On 10 October 2019, five activists, one woman and four men were arrested after they caught themselves at the gates of the Irish Parliament, Dail Eireann. [191] On November 29, 2019, pseudo-holidays known as Black Friday, traffic outside cherry creek shopping center in Denver, was stopped in the hands of protesters. The Extinction Riot Colorado blocked a traffic-positioning sleigh in the middle of East 1st Avenue, and locking people sleigh with their necks. The aim of the protest was to demonstrate the relationship between consumption and environmental impact. The protest blocked traffic for three hours as police and firefighters worked to safely separate the protesters from the sleigh they had blocked. Instead of reducing the locks around their necks, firefighters saw off poles on the sleigh, freeing the protesters from their positions. Four people were arrested and cited as an obstruction of the road and disobedience of a lawful officer.
